

The Salinas Californian

April 4, 2011

City planning panel adds new member

Matt Nohr, a 10-year veteran of the Commercial Division of Wald, Ruhnke & Dost Architects, has been appointed by the Salinas City Council to serve on the Planning Commission.

Nohr, a lifelong resident of the Salinas Valley, designed and served as project manager on architectural projects across the city, including projects like the new Monterey County Health Department headquarters, Tynan Village Multi-family Affordable Housing Project, and the Salinas Valley Memorial Healthcare System Harden Ranch Medical Campus.

The Planning Commission is responsible for reviewing and approving applications for conditional use permits, as well as making recommendations regarding approval or disapproval of subdivision maps, planned unit development permits, annexations, development agreements, etc.